

Thinking Biblically about Islam

discover the Treasure, encounter God, be shaped by the Message

GOLD Project Study Day with Ida Glaser

17th June 2017

at Easton Family Centre

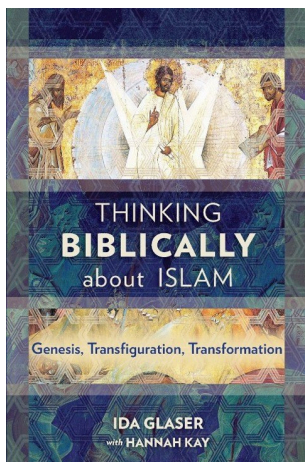

Beaufort Street, Easton, Bristol, BS5 0SQ

GOLD

Thinking Biblically about Islam

The Study Day will include interactive teaching and workshops to reflect on how the Bible can be used sensitively and effectively in our engagement with Islam

Ida Glaser is Director of the Centre for Muslim-Christian Studies in Oxford. She previously taught in the areas of Qur'an and Bible and History of Muslim-Christian Dialogue at the University of Edinburgh, and is presently engaged in projects on reading the Bible in the context of Islam. She is currently an Associate Staff member at Wycliffe Hall.

Ida has taught physics in Islamic contexts and church-based outreach in multi-racial, inner-city Britain. She has worked among people of other faiths for the Anglican Mission Agency, Crosslinks, and is a past director of Faith to Faith, a Christian consultancy to other faiths. She has recently published 'Thinking Biblically About Islam' (2016) with Hannah Kay.

The Study Day will take place at the Easton Christian Family Centre (<http://www.ecfc.org.uk>) from 10.00am (registration and coffee from 9.45am) to 3.45pm with a light lunch and refreshments provided during the day. Please let us know if you have any dietary requirements. The fee for the day will be £15 per person including lunch.

Further Information: To book or for further information contact:

David Ball: e-mail davidball@goldproject.org Tel 01252 614323